PROJECTS

---

Facial Emotion Detection using Convolutional Neural Network and OpenCV

- Producing an automatic facial emotion detection system to identify different emotions based on these experiments the system could identify several peoples that are sad, surprised, happy, fear, angry, etc.
- In this project I involved preprocessing data, selecting appropriate algorithms, and fine-tuning model parameters to achieve accurate predictions.
- Additionally, I led the development of the website, implementing front-end design and user interface functionalities using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript.
- I integrated the machine learning models into the website backend using frameworks like Flask allowing users to interact with the emotion detection system seamlessly.
- Throughout the project, I collaborated with a multidisciplinary team to ensure the integration of both the machine learning and web development aspects, resulting in a user-friendly and effective solution for emotion detection.
